The Secretagogue mechanism

HGH secretagogues are substances that induce the secretion of hormones from special cells of pituitary gland. They stimulate the endocrine system to produce and release HGH. Anti-aging physicians agree that it is much safer and more desirable to boost HGH level by means of effective secretagogue that assist the body in producing its own HGH than other methods. Scientists have discovered that special formulation of amino acids and other natural supplements taken at specific times of the day can stimulate your own pituitary gland to increase HGH production safely and naturally.
